

100 Days of Harm

And yet, the administration has not begun to effectuate the "mass deportations" that Trump threatened on the campaign trail. In fact, fewer deportations have occurred under this administration than during the same period under Biden. Rather, the administration seems to be counting on creating an unlivable culture of fear and xenophobia to drive immigrants to return to their countries of origin. This is bad for our communities, our workplaces, and our economy.

And of course, many of these attempted policy changes are currently being challenged through lawsuits and may not ultimately become the law.